

As a truck driver the traffic and weather channels provided by XM radio are invaluable to me. Finding local news stations while driving in traffic is often difficult if not dangerous. You have to keep scanning AM stations until you find one that can help. With XM I can program my radio for the cities I expect to pass through that day. Then when I want them I push a button and the info I need flows from the speaker without the distraction of hunting the dial. If local stations want to vie for my patronage they need to provide service without struggle like XM does.

Sincerely,

David G. Kummerow